

18. BURKHART

The name Burkhart (by any of various spellings) was not a common Amish Mennonite name in either Europe or Canada. Jean/Johannes Georges Burghart, a weaver, was from Wurttemberg, Germany, when he married Elisabeth Eymann of Anabaptist parentage in France. The couple lived in the vicinity of Ste. Croix-aux-Mines in Upper Alsace. After Elisabeth's death in 1807, Jean Georges married Barbara Eymann, a relative of Elisabeth's, born in nearby Ste. Marie-aux-Mines.

Jean/John George and Barbara had two daughters, Barbara and Magdalena, the latter dying in infancy. Jean Georges is said to have died at the hamlet of Harcholins, Cirey-sur-Vezouze, across the Vosges Mountains in Lorraine in 1811. At some point, Barbara, the widow, and Barbara, the daughter, went to live at Muesbach, near Ribeauville in Alsace, with the Waglers. They were listed in the 1836 census -- Mother Barbara in the Christian Wagler home and the daughter in the Jacob Wagler home. Since the Waglers also had Eymann ancestry, they were probably relatives. Mother Barbara died there in 1837.

In 1842, John Baptist Wagler, son of Jacob, and his wife and child migrated to Canada and leased property in South Easthope Township from the Canada Company. No doubt, Barbara Burkhart accompanied them for later the same year she married Joseph Jausie who had leased a lot nearby.
